Additional Comments: This is a 4-episode podcast with interviews from some of the key thought leaders in resilient streets planning. I co-hosted this with Dr. John Renne. This podcast series builds on the work we did for the book Adaptation Urbanism and Resilient Communities (Routledge 2021). We crafted an interview script for each episode and then interviewed the guests to examine key resilience themes. I assume this is the correct place to archive this work.

3. Funded Internal Grants and Contracts:

Fields, Willard M. Adaptation Urbanism Land Use Policy Evaluation, International Studies Honorary Professor Award, Texas State University, $500.00. (Submitted: March 2024, Funded: May 2024 - December 2024). Grant.

Additional Comments: This award was a research grant for study of Adaptation Urbanism in Barcelona and Oxford. I conduced site visits in August and September of 2024 and conducted interviews for upcoming research.

D. Scholarly / Creative Fellowships, Awards, Honors:

Fellowship Recipient: Health+Resilience Research Faculty Fellows, Texas State University Translational Health Research Center.
August 2022 - May 2023

Additional Comments: The faculty fellow program was established to highlight faculty engage in significant resilience research at Texas State. The programs website says, "The Faculty Fellows program crosses disciplinary boundaries to support high potential, high achieving researchers at Texas State University." Here is a link: https://healthresearch.txst.edu/current-research/faculty-fellows.html

Award / Honor Recipient: February 2019 Book Club Selection, TransportiCA California Green Academy.
February 2019

Additional Comments: TransportiCA is California-based non-profit. The book club highlights recomendeed books in the area of transportation sustainability policy.
